

Interventions in Criminal Justice

Volume 2

A handbook for counsellors and therapists working in the criminal justice system

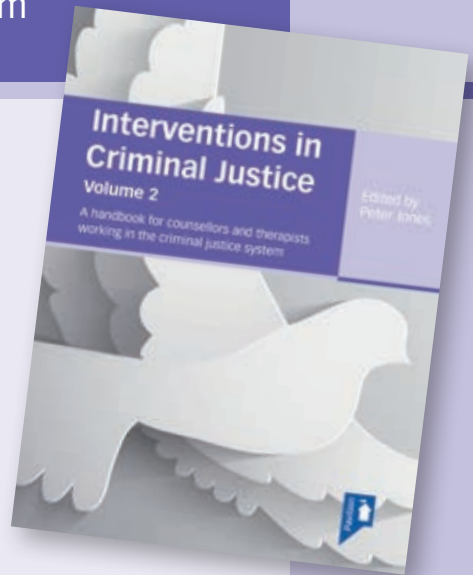

Edited by Peter Jones

This ground-breaking second volume of Interventions in Criminal Justice expands on the first volume in both breadth and depth and takes a new approach to 'working with' prisoners rather than the pejorative sounding 'dealing with'.

With chapters from a range of authors who do not fight shy of controversy, this handbook begins with a consideration of legal and ethical issues and concludes with some illustrative reflections on the 'rehabilitation revolution'.

Strength in such diverse, open and continued discourse makes this handbook unique, refreshing and forward-thinking.

This handbook seeks to give the reader a sound base to inform and shape their knowledge and practice whilst working therapeutically in the criminal justice system, raising the question of what best practice really means.
